Utility company experts tell powerline story

By BRENT MACEY

In a three hour press conference conducted in Piquette Tuesday afternoon, four Mississippi Power Company officials and an expert on high voltage power lines from Pennsylvania outlined the benefits of a 500,000 volt powerline being planned for construction through southern Mississippi and refuted statements the line will have adverse effects on plant and animal life in this area.

Citizens who may have the line cross their property en route from the Daniel Electric Plant in Pascagoula to a point near Baton Rouge have organized to prevent construction of the line.

Many have questioned possible 'hazardous effects' from the high voltage. Others feel their property will be devalued, and some fear pesticides used for weed control under the lines may effect grazing animals.

Donald Dana, manager of public relations for Mississippi Power, stated the purpose of the press conference was to have the facts presented.

In a brief introductory statement, he said the line would be of tremendous benefits to customers.

He noted the company has signed a contract to supply Gulf States Utilities of Beaumont, Texas with power until the mid 1990s.

"The sale of power by Mississippi Power will offset expenses the company would otherwise have to meet by rates paid by customers," Dana said.

Dana also stated anyone who lived through Hurricanes Camille and Fredrick would also realize the importance of service reliability.

To counter questions raised by citizens, Mississippi Power, Southern Bell, and residents from Jackson and Harrison Counties, Dana turned the floor over to Mike Silva, an Alabama native who is currently the president of Energy Technical Consultants in Pittsburg, Penn.

Dana stated Silva is better qualified to speak on the power line and noted Silva has also worked with the Alabama Power Company on line design and conducted studies with the Electric Power Research Institute in Calif., a research institute supported by many power companies across the nation, including Mississippi Power.

Silva presented a slide presentation to the group of reporters from Piquette and the coastal area.

He explained that the electric field surrounding a power line 'drops off very quickly' as the distance from the line increases.

He said a build-up of milliamps in ELECTRIC FIELD—Page 7A

Chamber sponsoring career guidance day

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will sponsor 'Commerce Day' Tuesday, April 20.

Purpose of Commerce Day is to provide local high school juniors with worthwhile, first-hand experience in the operation of local businesses and industries to assist them in career choices and employment seeking.

Students from Bay Senior High, Hancock North Central, St. Stanislaus, Our Lady's Academy, Trinity Christian Academy, and Coast Episcopal will participate, according to Dick Kosbab, education committee chairman of the chamber.

The members of the chamber are now being contacted by the education committee men for placement of the students. The juniors of the high schools selected first, second and some third choices of areas of interest.

Kosbab said, "The chance to work with businessmen and professionals helps many students decide if they

Other committee members are James Restor, Farm Bureau; Noretta Robinson, Pauline's; Kathy Savage, Hancock General Hospital; and Doug Vandavler, Kmart.

Kosbab said, "The students will be with the participating chamber members from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. This is to give students exposure to a firm's daily activities as a business, industrial or professional company."

Bay teen buried after fatal wreck

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A 19-year-old Bay St. Louis woman who died Sunday morning from injuries suffered in a Saturday night Pass Christian automobile accident was buried Tuesday afternoon.

The body of Whitney Faith Johnston of 513 Genin St. was buried at Cedar Rest Cemetery in Bay St. Louis following a 1 p.m. Funeral Mass at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

Johnston died at Gulfport Memorial Hospital where she and two others, involved in the accident were taken by Mobile Medic for treatment.

A hospital spokesman Tuesday said Johnston died in the intensive care unit of head injuries.

The spokesman reported that John Housy, 28, of Laurel was treated for multiple abrasions and released.

Housy is guitarist for the house band at 'Dock of the Bay' in Bay St. Louis.

The Sea Coast Echo was not able to find out if Housy or the band will perform this week. The group performs nightly Thursday through Saturday.

Matthew Allen, 30, of Gulfport was treated for a laceration of the scalp and leg and released, the spokesman said.

Chief Ed Alley of the Pass Christian Police Department, Tuesday reported Lisa Glen, 19, of Biloxi, a fourth person involved in the accident, was apparently not injured.

Alley noted the one-car mishap occurred at about 9:51 p.m. on the west-bound lanes of US-90 about 40 yards east of the Shadow Lawn Drive intersection.

He said the compact automobile driven by Johnston was traveling at a high rate of speed when the car's left front wheel struck the median curb.

"She pulled the wheel to the right when she hit the curb, the car became airborne and flipped over three times," Alley explained.

The chief said Johnston was thrown through the car's sun roof.

He reported Housy was seated in the front passenger seat and was thrown out of the auto's hatchback.

Allen was seated in the right rear passenger seat and was ejected through the front windshield, the chief stated.

Alley said Glen was in the left rear passenger seat, but was not thrown from the car.

The chief reported that Pass Patrolman Judith Murphy was traveling in the eastbound lanes of US-90 when she spotted the vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed.

He said Murphy was negotiating a U-turn to intercept the Johnston vehicle when the officer observed the car rolling over in the eastbound lanes.

"The car was totally demolished. It rolled about 90 feet from the point of impact with the curbing," Alley stated.

Johnston was a member of Our Lady of the Gulf Church and 1980 graduate of Our Lady's Academy in Bay St. Louis.

She was attending Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in Perkinston where she was a sophomore. Johnston was 1961 Homecoming Queen and a cheerleader at the college, and a high school beauty queen for two years.

She was listed in Who's Who Among American High School and College Students.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Huey F. Johnston of Bay St. Louis, her maternal grandparents, Mrs. Virginia Brantley of the Ocean Community, and Joseph E. Brantley of Ocean Springs, and a brother, Kenneth C. Johnston of Bay St. Louis.

WHITNEY FAITH JOHNSTON, 19, of Biloxi, a fourth person involved in the accident, was apparently not injured.

Cochran's mobile office scheduled for Hancock visit

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran is dispatching his mobile office to Hancock and Pearl River counties on Tuesday, April 13.

The Senator's mobile office staff will be at the courthouses in Poplarville and Bay St. Louis on April 13 to be available to constituents of the area.

Senator Cochran's mobile office will be at the Pearl River County Courthouse in Poplarville from 11 a.m. until noon April 13, and at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis from 2 until 3 p.m. that day.

Citizens who have a problem with a federal agency or who may wish to express their sentiments on issues before Congress are urged to meet with the Senator's staff when they are in the area on April 13.

Senator Cochran instituted the mobile office in an effort to help provide constituent service to Mississippians at the local level in the state's 82 counties.

Chancery Court ruling favors Power Company

Mississippi Power Company officials said this week they are uncertain at this time what action the company will take as a result of a recent Chancery Court ruling that the Mississippi Public Service Commission erred on 10 of 12 points in denying a 1980 rate hike request.

The commission had denied some $22 million asked by the company. In an opinion issued March 19, Chancellor Joe Moss ruled that the state Public Service Commission had erred on 10 of 12 points when, in April 1981, it granted Mississippi Power only $10.9 million of its requested $39.3 million rate hike. The Gulfport-based utility which serves Bay St. Louis, Waveland and portions of Hancock County had filed the request for the increase in October 1980.

In ruling on the power company's appeal of the PSC decision, the court sent the case back to the commission, which has 60 days to accept the opinion or appeal it to a higher court.

Because the entire proposed rate hike was passed on to customers under bond in November 1980, the ruling will have no effect on customers' electric bills, said Donald Dana, manager of public information for MPC.

"It (the ruling) does nothing to alter the rate the public is paying," he said, "but it does go a long way in underscoring points our company made as to why we had to make this increase."

According to Dana, lawyers and financial advisers for the firm have determined that the ruling, in effect, allows the power company an increase of about $32.9 million.

While the court has no power to determine specific rates, it does have the authority to review a ruling by the PSC and determine error, Dana said.

In the 22-page opinion, the chancellor wrote that the commission "may not, under the guise of regulation, usurp the functions of management."

The chancellor also wrote that the commission had erred on several points. For example, according to the decision, "it was error for the Commission to ignore the actual maintenance as shown by the company for 1980 and base its findings on testimony...based upon the 1976 to 1979 trends."

The court also noted that "it was error for the Commission to eliminate from rate base the cost of construction work in progress with respect to plant items which are not and will not be revenue producing."

The court also ruled that, in some instances, the commission was "applying one set of rules to one electric utility and a different set to another." These comments came in reference to two cases involving Mississippi Power & Light Co.

"We feel good about the case," Dana said. "We're pleased he found most of the company's requests were justified." He quickly added, however, "We felt on all points we were correct."

Either the PSC or the Mississippi Legal Services Coalition, which took part in the commission hearing, may appeal the chancellor's ruling, Dana said.

By imposing the rate hike under bond, the company is protected during the length of adjudication, Dana said. The bond also protects the customer, he said, because if the company were to lose all or part of the rate case, customers would be reimbursed, with interest.

In other words, if the PSC were to accept the court's ruling and grant the power company 84 percent of the rate hike, the utility would pay back the 16 percent it did not win to its customers.

The company is undecided whether it will pursue further legal action to secure the entire amount should the PSC approve the $32.9 million, Dana said.

The manner in which any reimbursement would be made, Dana added, would be worked out through the PSC.

Alan Barton, President, Mississippi

Power Company, this week issued the following statement in connection with the Chancery ruling:

"It is apparent that the Chancery Court has ruled that the Public Service Commission's decision granting Mississippi Power Company only $10.9 million, or 28 percent of the original $39.3 million request, was unsupported by testimony offered by that agency's witnesses and inconsistent with previous commission rulings in other cases.

"We were disappointed that Mississippi Power was not awarded the entire amount sought and which is needed. However, we are pleased that the court found that most of the company's increase in rates was justified by the evidence presented in the case.

"We cannot now say what further legal action on this rate request will be necessary. However, only if Mississippi Power Company is allowed to charge fair and reasonable rates can the company remain financially sound and continue providing essential, reliable electric power for its customers throughout southeast Mississippi."

because the courts are open to the public, Dana said.

Accepted a recommendation by McCullough to shorten the present 175-day school year to 172. The superintendent said he offered the recommendation because Gov. William Winter declared a state of emergency on Jan. 12-14 when sub-freezing temperatures bringing ice and snow closed schools statewide. McCullough also noted the district's schools closed one day recently so teachers could attend a Jackson rally protesting the legislature's failure to increase education budgets.

Approved a one-day sick leave extension request by teacher Cathy Elia. The superintendent said the day was given to Mrs. Mary Elia.

Received complimentary copies of the high school annual.

Bits 'n pieces

It was, rather shocking Tuesday night when Warren Carver told me about my first cousin Irv Cuevas' name being mentioned as the leader of a news team in El Salvador which was shot at from a helicopter.

This appeared on the NBC news and I am sure glad Irv did not get killed or injured.

We are sure many of you remember Irv when he was a newsman for WLOX and then later moved to an Atlanta TV station. In our last conversations Irv was working on a special news team at NBC Burbank.

We called his brother Donald, the mailman, Wednesday and he told us Irv was scheduled to leave El Salvador today after a two-week stay. We are going to have to give him a call when he returns home.

We are glad the Space Shuttle made a safe return home as so many of our local folks are involved in the space program.

It seems weather played an important role in the changes of the landing sites a couple times and caused an extension of the flight.

Our story several weeks ago about a study being done on Stennis International Airport in Hancock County as a possible alternate landing strip seems to be something NASA needs.

It will be interesting to watch the development of Stennis Airport in conjunction with the space program, especially with part of it being in the buffer zone. It is very close to the test stands.

Summer is fast approaching and people are beginning to think about filling their freezers with seafood.

A new project in our area is the construction and sale of crab traps (pots) by Hancock Industries.

We feel Hancock Industries is one of the greatest assets in Hancock County because it gives an opportunity to quite a few people to make a few nickles in doing some worthwhile chore.

We know many of you have stopped by the Hancock Industries on US-90 and have purchased other items these people have manufactured and the purchases are very much appreciated.

So if you need crab traps, remember Hancock Industries.

Someone I know is pulling his hair out trying to figure what happened to a large ring of one dozen keys.

The keys have been found and are at the Hancock County Sheriff's office where the owner can identify.

They are on a very large ring and look real important.

We noted some very happy faces Tuesday and Wednesday on young boys and girls faces as the Bay High Tiger Pride Band left for Jackson and Washington D.C.

It has been a long hard drive for the Band Aides and friends of the Tiger Pride in getting enough money for the special trip.

We are sure the band members will remember this trip the rest of their lives.

In case anyone gets any ideas, we have been told by several band aides that the chaperons are paying their own way. The funds collected were for the band members only.

At this time we want to express a sincere thank you to each and everyone for the generosity in helping the Bay High Tiger Pride make the journey to Washington.

US-90 from North Beach to Dunbar Avenue looked just wonderful Saturday after the clean-up by Brother Dwight's Boy Scout Troop 86 sponsored by St. Stanislaus.

The scouts picked up a truckload of trash in their efforts. They removed every can, bottle and shred of paper among other things in their clean-up.

We hope many more groups and individuals will be aware of the amount of debris along our highways and streets and help remove it so our communities can look a lot cleaner.

If the scouts can do it, it seems some of us adults should be able. Get some of your friends together, give us a call and we will even try to take a picture of you and your group.

Our weather was so warm a couple weeks ago, many folks went in for a swim. Now last weekend was another story as the mothballs had to be shaken from the jackets.

In just another weekend the Wave Pool at Buccaneer State Park will be open Saturday and Sunday.

A seven day-a-week schedule will not go into effect until May 23. The Wave Pool is a big attraction, and many of our residents as well as visitors have really enjoyed the wonderful facility.

We must remember there are not too many people who know what a Wave Pool is much less the enjoyment they offer swimmers.

A piece of literature from the Park states "...The Wave Pool offers fun for everyone—swimmers and non-swimmers. It provides a place for 'tanning,' sun bathing, and playing in the waves..."

See you at the Wave Pool... in two weeks.

No, we haven't forgotten today is April Fool's Day. It is felt there are so many serious things going on that really isn't anytime for any foolishness.

Many citizens may have been favorite targets for consumer fraud, but much of the fraud can be prevented by taking some specific precautions, according to the Mississippi Council on Aging.

Beware of something for nothing or bargain almost too good to be true," said Jay C. Moon, MCOA executive director. "There's often a catch, and unfortunately many elderly persons find this catch late."

Moon also cautioned against making quick decisions when being pressured by a salesman. "Most reputable salesmen would pressure you to make a quick decision," he said. "Many types of fraud take place because the buyer or investor didn't take the necessary time to analyze the offer."

The MCOA executive director emphasized that elderly citizens should not deal with strangers. "Reputable representatives who are calling on older persons are happy to provide proper identification, and no person should be permitted into one's home unless the individual is known to the resident or provides proper identification," Moon said. "If there's any doubt about the validity of the identification, the stranger should not be permitted to enter. Sometimes a telephone call to the organization the individual supposedly represents can be useful in determining whether the identification is valid."

Moon also advised consumers to never sign contracts under pressure. "Read every word of any document you're called upon to sign, and be sure you understand it. Don't rely on the salesman's interpretation. If you don't understand the contract, have someone you trust explain it to you before you sign it. Be sure the contract covers all promises and commitments you and the salesman have agreed upon. Never sign anything with blanks that have not been filled in," he said.

A popular scheme used with older citizens is having the individual withdraw money from his or her bank account. Sometimes this approach is employed as a "good faith" gesture to a person who has been approached by a stranger. The person approaching the elderly citizen poses as a bank examiner. "The simplest advice here is never withdraw funds from your bank account for a stranger," Moon said. "Whenever your bank account is involved, have the stranger properly identify himself in the presence of your banker."

Guarantees can be confusing to consumers of all ages. "Any advertised guarantee should state what the guarantor will do to satisfy the guarantee and exactly who is the guarantor," he said. "Is the guarantee being made by the seller or the manufacturer? Will the guarantor repair a damaged item, replace defective parts or refund money for inadequate products?"

Each spring and summer, itinerant home repairmen swindle Mississippians out of large sums of money. The basic approach is to charge very high prices for inferior work or work that never is performed. "Again, it's important to deal with someone you know," Moon said. "If you don't know the person, obtain definite identification. Don't be fooled by companies promising large discounts in exchange for using your home as a 'model' to show other prospective customers. Always obtain a signed contract when entering into a home repair or home-addition agreement."

"This contract should contain details of the exact work to be performed, the exact cost of labor and materials, the type and quality of materials, the names of material suppliers and any subcontractors," he said. "If you are a building supply firm that bills the contractor on account, be sure the contract and a written warranty is signed by the contractor and a written warranty is signed by you."

Typically, reputable local contractors do not work on cash advance for the purchase of materials. They usually cannot be trusted if they are a building supply firm that bills the contractor on account.

"Don't be afraid to ask questions," Moon said. "If you are a building supply firm that bills the contractor on account, be sure the contract and a written warranty is signed by the contractor and a written warranty is signed by you."

"If you are a building supply firm that bills the contractor on account, be sure the contract and a written warranty is signed by the contractor and a written warranty is signed by you."

"If you are a building supply firm that bills the contractor on account, be sure the contract and a written warranty is signed by the contractor and a written warranty is signed by you."

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

Mississippi could gain $10.5 million in increased federal food donations as a result of a bill recently passed into law by Governor William Winter.

Governor's Office of Federal State Programs research indicated that a transfer of food distribution activities from the Department of Mental Health to the State Department of Education would take advantage of the Education Department's USDA Food Distribution program expertise and facilities and enable more food to be distributed. The Education Department has 12 school lunch program distribution points across the state while DMH has only one in the greater Jackson area.

Together, the two bills provide about $108,000 to fund three staff positions and some support services in the Education Department's Food Services Division. The positions include a clerk and two supervisors to oversee the distribution of federal commodities to penal institutions and charitable groups.

"We are continually looking at means of increasing cooperation among state agencies to bring about increased federal funding to our state and to operate government more economically," said Winter. "The Federal State Programs research is indicative of those ongoing efforts."

In the future, foods will be dispersed under the same process used for food distribution in school lunch programs. This system involves taking commodities by truck or train to the 12 distribution points located strategically across the state for easy pickup by institutions.

Previously, under the Department of Mental Health, institutions have been required to drive to a storage facility at the Mississippi State Hospital at Whitfield to pick up food items.

As a result, most of the 23 groups receiving commodities are located in the Jackson area. For institutions located in extreme north or south Mississippi, the trip to Whitfield would be a considerable expense.

Typical of the foods that will be distributed under the new program are cheese, butter, non-fat dry milk, flour, cornmeal, peanut butter, rice and some meat products.

More than 500 Mississippians have been served by the Governor's Service Line tax assistance program since it began on Feb. 1.

This service, provided in cooperation with the State Tax Commission, includes providing tax forms, answering basic state tax questions and referring callers to volunteer tax preparation services. Assistance may be obtained by dialing the toll-free number, 1-800-222-7622, or the Jackson number, 961-4042.

Some of the most frequently asked questions, according to Carol Taff, Governor's Service Line supervisor, are "How long does it take to get my refund?" "Is the interest earned on All-Savers certificates exempt from state taxes?" "May I receive child care credit against my state tax obligation?" and "If my exemptions and deductions are higher than my income, what do I put on Line 15 where it says Mississippi taxable income?"

Generally taken six to eight weeks to receive a refund, the All-Savers interest is taxable in Mississippi, the state does not give child care credit to taxpayers and, if taxable income is a negative figure, one merely puts a zero on Line 15.

All of these questions, however, are answered by the Service Line. If we cannot answer your question, we will refer you to the Tax Commission and tell the individual how to contact them.

In addition to these questions, the Governor's Service Line handles questions on virtually every other subject relating to state services and regulations.

To contact the Service Line, dial the toll-free number, 1-800-222-7622, or the Jackson number, 961-4042.

For more information, contact the Governor's Service Line at 961-4042.

Hancock escapee sought

By CURS GUYARD
An all-points bulletin has been issued for George Ben Smith, 27, of Bay St. Louis, who escaped from the Hancock County Jail sometime Tuesday night, according to Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Smith was scheduled to appear Monday before Judge Leslie B. Grant for a trial date to be set.

He was indicted by the January Grand Jury and was being held in jail in lieu of a $50,000 bond in connection with a January robbery and aggravated assault on a Waveland double amputee.

Smith's 17-year-old alleged accomplice was indicted on the same charges and remains in the Hancock County Jail.

Peterson said, "We are trying to figure just how Smith was able to get out of his cell. The main door to the jail was only opened once during the night and that was at 11:45 p.m. The jailer and a Waveland patrolman placed another prisoner in an upstairs cell."

"Smith was in a cell downstairs with a pad lock on and he was discovered missing by the jailer at 5 a.m. He apparently slipped out while the other prisoner was being put in the upstairs cell. We are now investigating just how he was able to unlock his cell," Peterson added.

Smith is described as being a white, male, 27-years-old, 135 pounds, 5 feet-10 inches tall, medium complexion with brown hair and eyes.

Peterson said he thinks Smith has fled to the Slidell area but police are keeping a close check in this area for him.

Waveland Investigator Sandra Henley reported late Wednesday her department is also keeping a lookout for Smith.

Smith and David Skinner, 17, 104 Coleman Ave., Waveland were apprehended by Hancock and Waveland authorities Tuesday night. They were charged with robbing a Waveland store, stealing a car and shooting a Waveland patrolman.

Skinner is scheduled to be tried as an adult and his name was released to the press by authorities because of the nature of the crime in which he was allegedly involved.

DOOR BURGLARY
Three persons were arrested in connection with the burglary of a door from a house under construction in the White Cypress area, according to Hancock Investigator Delbert Seay.

Seay said that Vernon Dale Ladner, 23, was arrested Tuesday, and Eugene Eugene Dedeaux, 21, and Gerald Ladner, 29, were both arrested Wednesday in connection with the burglary.

All three are charged with burglary of a dwelling and bond is set at $1,000 each.

Hancock Deputy Nathan Hoda is assisting in the investigation.

STOLEN TRUCK RECOVERED
The stripped remains of a truck reported stolen recently from the Reflections Lounge on US-90 in Waveland was found late Wednesday, according to Hancock Investigator Seay.

Seay said two suspects are being sought. Seay said the truck was found in the morning truck case.

metal objects directly under the power line would not be great enough to prevent an individual from letting go of the object without assistance.

Dr. Charles Beck of Tulane University has claimed that could possibly happen.

Beck also has stated that "fire balls" can cross and area near power lines. Silva said "fire balls" have never been reported.

Silva stated there have been several studies in the past which have not been able to be duplicated by other scientists while other studies have been of poor quality.

He stated Beck uses these same studies when testifying against Harrison Counties.

Silva said studies have shown that cattle show "no grazing preference" when given the opportunity to graze under a powerline or away from a powerline.

He said studies on 11 farms in Indiana and Michigan have shown "no effects on farm animals."

Plants grown directly under a 250,000 volt line have shown signs of developing dryness near the tips and the tips will eventually become rounded, Silva said.

However, "Silva said that the plants' growth is not affected by the electric field. Once the plant's tips have rounded, voltage has been increased up to 500,000 to 700,000 volts and no damage has been reported, he said.

"You might ask, if there is no problem, why do they continue research?"

He added, "If leakage could cause a problem then the worse case might be in your own home."

Silva said a portable household appliance, such as a hair dryer, releases as many milliamperes as a 300,000 volt line.

Silva questioned Beck's testimonies across the country and stated the doctor is paid $1,500 for each testimony.

Silva also stated Beck has never been successful in convincing a jury that a high voltage transmission line will cause adverse effects.

Following the presentation, questions were entertained by the power company officials at the general office in Gulfport, including Dana, Charles Stanford Jr., general manager of bulk power distribution; Tom Hewes, manager of transmissions and Joe Corley, supervisor of land.

Corley stated the surveying project is 70 percent complete with most of the survey work completed in Hancock and Harrison Counties.

"We haven't done that much (survey work) in Pearl River County," he said. He stated the exact route of the line has not yet been determined.

The survey must be complete and a construction and land negotiating permit obtained by the Public Service Commission before the company will begin negotiating land prices, he said.

He expects negotiations to begin within two months.

He stated the negotiated rate for property needed by the company will involve consideration of the length of the right-of-way through citizens' property, whether or pasture land, and the survey route, and any possible damage to the property resulting from the right-of-way.

LOCAL TURKEY—Mike Green, right, and Dave Harvill bagged this 15-pound Hancock County turkey Tuesday morning. Green was able to gobble the turkey into range while Harvill had a larger one coming but could not get him into gun range. The two local hunters reported they saw a total of ten turkeys on the trip, but like most hunters, would not disclose the exact location. They did mention the place is hard to get to and is in Hancock County. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Those victorious for Bay High were Mike Proulx, boys singles; Dana Favre, girls singles; Rickey Ladner and Mike Barnes, boys doubles; and Terrie Rhodes and Donna Gilmore, girls doubles. Bay High's record now stands at 5-2 with wins over Coast Episcopal, Pass Christian and Mercy Cross. Their only losses have been Long Beach and Biloxi in two close matches. "We feel we have a good chance to win conference and district this year," said coach Barbara Powell. "We have some very talented players. Area high school baseball results

The St. Stanislaus High School varsity baseball team soared to an early 7-0 lead in first inning of a home game against Poplarville Monday.

The victory gives the Rock-A-Chaws a 5-0 overall season record and brings their Deep South Conference Record to 3-2.

In the first inning Hawk Sean Logan doubled. A single by Larry Hopkins drove him home for the first run of the ball game.

Steve Favre walked. Joe Gex hit a hard shot to the short stop who bugged the ball but managed to get Hopkins at third. Gus Aime doubled to drive both Hopkins and Gex home. Chris Darling followed with a drive to the second baseman who fumbled the ball and allowed Aime to score.

Ronnie Artigue then hit a single. Schultz doubled to drive in Artigue and Logan also doubled to finish the scoring spree 7-0.

In the second inning Favre singled to center and Gex walked. A hit by Darling scored the two runners.

In the third inning the Rocks added four more runs to complete their scoring for the game.

The Hornets picked up three in the second inning, and added seven more runs in the fifth.

Most of the Poplarville runs were unearned and were the result of six walks and seven errors by the rocks.

Logan, who struck out five and walked eight, pitched five innings and was relieved by Aime.

Aime struck out five in the remaining two innings.

PASS NIPS SSC

The Pass Christian High School varsity baseball team knocked off St. Stanislaus 7-4 in a Deep South Conference game Tuesday in the Pass.

The game boosted the Pirates overall record to 7-3 and brings their conference record to 2-0.

St. Stanislaus is now 5-7 for the season with a 3-3 Conference record.

The Rock-A-Chaws out-hit the Pirates 10-9, but The Pass had a deadly third inning, scoring five runs to win the game out of reach.

Jeff Ulrich was the winning pitcher. Ulrich, a righthander, struck out four and walked only one.

Rock Brad Lamey had five strike-outs and three walks. The Rock-A-Chaws scored one in the second and another in the sixth. A final solo homerun blast by Joe Gex in the seventh ended the scoring.

MERCY CROSS TOPS BAY Mercy Cross devastated the Bay High School Tiger baseball team 10-2 in Tiger Stadium Tuesday.

Although the Bay totalled 10 hits to the Crusader's 11, the Tigers couldn't manage to get runners across the plate and left the bases loaded several times throughout the game.

Tiger Scott Adams went 3-3 at the plate while teammates David Palmisano and Donnie Dwyer each went 2-4.

The Crusaders went on a scoring spree in the first inning, with three doubles and two run homer.

The Bay scored runs in the third and fourth.

The Tigers face Pearl River, Central at home tonight.

The Pass will be Stone County April 3, in an away game.

Streaks to wrap up soccer season Sunday

In the South Mississippi Soccer Club, under 10-division, the Streaks continued their winning record in two weeks by winning three games and having a scoreless tie game.

The Streaks, coached by Ray Kidd, beat Orange Grove No. 3 by the score of 3-0 on March 20 at the St. Clare field.

Kevin Bourg scored two goals and Trey Kidd scored one.

In a makeup game on Thursday, the Streaks beat cross city rival Bay St. Louis No. 4, coached by Terry Towles, 6-0. Brian Martin scored three goals. Larry Ladner, Trey Kidd and Bubba O'Brian each had one goal.

On Saturday, the Streaks won over school rival, Bay St. Louis No. 2, coached by Stan Weidman, by the score of 2-0. Brian Martin scored both goals. This win extended the Streaks' undefeated season to twelve games.

Sunday, the Streaks and Orange Grove No. 1 played to a scoreless tie at the St. Clare field. A good defensive game was played by fullback John Russo and Ronnie David Eckert.

The Streaks end their regular season on Sunday, April 4 in a postponed game against Long Beach No. 1 at 2 p.m. on the St. Clare field.

The Streaks have had only four goals scored against them all season.

SSC Sideline Club sponsoring fish fry

The Sideline Club, Inc. will serve a fish fry dinner Saturday at the St. Stanislaus High School cafeteria at 5:30 p.m.

The dinner is a new event for the club which may become an annual affair, according to Horatio Farve, club president.

The menu will consist of fried fish, hush puppies, potato salad, coleslaw, and iced tea.

Members of the club are selling tickets.

A special line for take-out orders will speed up getting in and out of the cafeteria.

All tickets are $3 with no special price for children.

RETRIEVERS

The cost of fishing lures, like everything else, is going up. Lures that used to sell for less than a dollar now cost three times their former price. Losing one of these to an underwater snag puts a dent in an angler's wallet, not to mention his tacklebox.

With lures costing so much, fishermen are more inclined to save them when they hang up on stumps, rocks and other unsavory debris. There are several ways to go about it but the most effective, according to Mercury outdoors' fishing experts, is to use a manufactured lure retriever. These devices are slotted to slip over the fishing line, and are usually equipped with short lengths of chain to entangle the lure's hooks. A stout line attached to the retriever lets you pull the lure backward and free once it is hooked.

If you don't have a retriever, jiggle the rod tip up and down vigorously while holding the line taut, letting it go slack on each downward move.

Hancock Folk Art Festival to spotlight ox-team logging

By JOE HEDGECOCK

If you don't know all about oxen, you would be surprised that you drive down to Lakeshore and have a good time with Tommy Moran.

What Moran doesn't know about oxen just really isn't worth knowing. That's why he was selected, to represent Hancock County at the Folk Art Festival to be held the entire fourth week of April.

The event is co-sponsored by the Mississippi Art Commission and the State Library Commission.

Right now Tommy Moran's prized teams are working in the Sunrise Community on the Petal side of the Leaf River. From their home base in Lakeshore they were sent by truck, along with their gear which consists of yokes, bows, pins, whips and chains and a lot of feed stuff.

The average weight of these oxen runs about 1,400 to 1,500 pounds. They are fed once a day—and they eat a lot.

"Oxen are ruminants," Moran explained, "they chew their cud."

The animals are fed at night and that allows them ample time for food digestion before the day's work begins.

The day of a working ox starts early. They are ready at the break of dawn and the crack of the whip. Seldom is the whip ever used on an animal. It is just popped in the air as a sort of command with a threat.

Well trained oxen know their work, know their names, know their place and their particular job. Their team work is pure rhythm and harmony.

"The yoke is easy," made of black iron, the bow is made of seasoned hickory, together with the pins they have a total weight of around 45 pounds which is not a heavy load for an animal weighing 1,500 pounds.

And there is true art in the making of a good and well-fitted bow. Moran says hot water is used to bend and shape the bow which is later "scorched" for a smooth fit. These properly and carefully made bows do not chaff or irritate and they last indefinitely.

Charlie took one from Dad's team," Moran said, "that was every bit 60 years old and in good shape."

The normal working life of an ox is about 20 years, but Old Charlie was an exception. This noble beast was born in 1961 and died in pasture in 1979 at the age of 28 with 26 years of his life being "working years."

Charlie was a brown-brindle ox with long horns and he knew more about logging than most men ever learn," declared Moran. Charlie helped break in and train newcomers to the team. He was the sort of lead ox that took care of the team—not letting them rush, and he would put on the breaks to prevent over-action that could strain a young unseasoned animal. When Charlie was put out to pasture he was blind and old, but that doesn't necessarily mean he liked retirement.

Moran likes to start training his oxen at about two and a half to three years of age. At that age they are bigger and understand better. The actual vocabulary that an ox must learn consists of very few words, such as "Gee," turn right; "Haw," turn left; "Git," go forward, and "Woah," stop.

But the amount of accent and the tone of the driver's voice has several shades of meaning which any good ox comes to understand.

There is a sweet harmony between a man and his team. It is hard to define, and hard for folks to understand, but an ox team works with the driver in the same way as an orchestra works with a director.

As the oxen work, they are in a state of inter-dependence. The ox senses that his "food" care, protection and well-being centers around the driver. His master. He gives his driver's commands his all. The driver knows the economic value of his team as well as his service to society.

Those logs "snaked out" of forest or bog becomes valuable timber.

The team is not required to work beyond strength and endurance. "Sometimes I work my team a full day—about 12 hours when weather is good and conditions are right," Moran explained.

"At other times when they are required to work in an over-grown bog with poor weather conditions I may put them to pasture by noon," he concluded.

There was a time when one ox would be belled so that roaming grazing oxen could be located and penned up for the night. This is no longer a practice since oxen are let loose in fenced pastures.

After the logs are taken out they are skidded along to waiting trucks where they are loaded for destination. Moran says there is an advantage in this type of loading since the oxen do not damage the land over which they travel as do the mechanical skidders which tear and scar the land.

He says oxen are cheaper, too. Cost of fuel is high and although oxen eat a great deal, the feed stuff is not nearly as costly as gas and oil.

Ox feed is about 12 to 14 percent protein, the rest is filler and the mixture is cottonseed meal, cracked corn, and cotton seed hulls.

In the winter time Moran discovered a benefit in adding a small amount of salt to the feed. "I don't know why," he said, "but it seems to make them eat more roughage."

Moran said an ox doesn't sweat and loose salt as do many animals.

Hancock County Librarian Prima Wusnack says a field trip is being planned so that school children may go to Lakeshore to see Moran and his team, hear the whip popping, the commands given, and see the work of an ox team. Moran has graciously agreed to come to the City County Library during the festival and demonstrate whip popping.

He will also display gear and artifacts. Moran ably handles both ox and cow whips, and there is quite an art to this as well as a notable difference.

Cow whips are about fourteen feet long, it takes hand and arm strength plus practice and skill to handle them. Ox whips are shorter, since those animals work in rather close quarters situations and tight places where long whips would get tangled in the brush," Moran said.

The ox whip has a head about five to six feet long and about four feet of whip.

Moran says he doesn't think logging with oxen is a dying art. He feels this is the most economical as well as the most satisfactory way to get logs out.

"The Humane Society members are really misinformed," Moran said. "Some of them think the animals are ill used and whipped. This is not so. An ox has tough feet and strong legs. In some mountain areas where there are rocks their feet might need protection (ox shoes), but in Mississippi there are no rocks where we log."

The well-trained lead ox knows how to put on brakes, and avoid muscle injury when the animals pull," he explained.

Moran said oxen are mild animals and gentle. However, occasionally there will be a driver that just doesn't fit in with the team, and has to be replaced.

Not that he isn't a qualified driver, but because driver and team must work in complete harmony of mind and purpose—work like a well-oiled machine.

"Once a driver and team is mated," Moran said, "there's no way of describing the joy of the labor."

To Moran, working with a well-trained oxen team is "pure pleasure." "I'd rather work with my oxen than do anything else in the world," he asserted.

Moran is a native of Hancock County, Mississippi, graduated from Lakeshore High School in Lakeshore, and graduated with the Class of '51 from Bay High.

His grandfather, Vincent Paul Moran of Kiln, married, into the Ladner family and settled in Lakeshore.

Moran has six children. His second son has worked with him some, but at this point he isn't sure whether any of his brood will follow his chosen profession.

"With children, one doesn't drive," he concluded.

METV to rebroadcast Passover production

Mississippi ETV's award-winning production "Passover," hosted by Edward Asner, will be rebroadcast this year at 8 p.m., Monday, April 5, on the Mississippi ETV Network. It will air nationwide on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) on April 8.

"Passover" details the history, practice and significance of Passover, celebrated each spring by Jews in remembrance of the Exodus led by Moses, from Egypt into Israel more than 3,000 years ago. The beginning of Passover is observed at the seder, a home service centered around a special meal. Passover begins this year at sundown April 7.

An American seder is the program's focal point. Also filmed were seders practiced by several Israeli families, and the scene of another well-known Jewish seder is included: the "Upper Room where Jesus and the 12 apostles participated in the Last Supper.

Other sequences shot on location in Israel show art from several rare, historical Haggadahs (Passover prayer books); an Israeli dance troupe; and several geographical locations that pertain to the Passover story: the Sinai Desert, Jericho and the Western Wall, the last remaining wall of the Second Temple.

Thibodeaux principal named provincial

Newly-elected provincial of the New Orleans Province of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart is Brother Xavier Werneth.

That order operates St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis and is under the jurisdiction of province.

He has been principal at E. D. White High School in Thibodeaux, La. since 1976. Xavier has also served as director of the Brothers Community there.

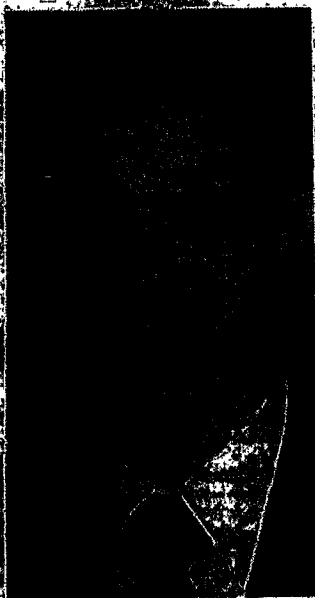

He first came to Thibodeaux as a teacher in 1975. Earlier, he had taught at St. Stanislaus High School in Baton Rouge, La. for ten years. In 1979, he was elected to the Provincial Council.

A native Mobilian, Werneth is the son of the late Francis Xavier Werneth Sr. and Mrs. Francis Xavier Werneth Jr.

He attended McGill High School in Mobile before entering the Brothers' Jurisdiction at Daphne, Ala. in 1958.

Werneth journeyed to Belvidere, N.J., for his novitiate studies then reversed his field, coming south to attend Spring Hill College in Mobile where the brothers had their Scholasticate.

He took his first vows in 1962 at Belvidere and made his perpetual profession in 1968 in his home town.

While at Spring Hill College, Werneth obtained a bachelor of arts degree. In 1970 he received a master of arts degree from Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge.

As elected delegates to the General Chapter, he and Brother Bernard Couvillion will journey to Rome, Italy with Brother Leo Barker of St. Stanislaus for the sessions which begin in early July, 1982.

The provincial-elect will replace Barker, provincial for the past six years, who has been named vocation director for the New Orleans Province. Werneth assumes his new duties Aug. 15.

Bay Little Theatre opens mystery production tonight

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will stage its second show of the year, "The Cat And The Canary," by John Willard Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. each evening. Theatre doors open at 7:30 p.m.

Admission is $4. Family night is tonight with students in eighth grade and under admitted for half price when accompanied by a parent.

Saturday is Champagne Night, according to director Tim Bourgeois.

The play revolves around the last will and testament of Cyrus Canby West, an eccentric multi-millionaire who has gathered his six living heirs 20 years after his death to hear the reading of the will.

Everything goes smoothly until the estate lawyer Mr. Crosby (Ted Stechmann) disappears and no one seems to know where he is.

Added to this is the jealousy of Harry Blythe (Mike Hamm) and Charlie Wilder (Jim Holmes) over the love of Annabelle West (Lynn Stechmann).

Because of "Old Man West's" whims, he has kept his old West Indian housekeeper (Celeste Proulx) to watch his house.

This would not seem so strange except the housekeeper believes in voodoo, and this only adds to the impending doom that pervades the house.

The plot further thickens when a lunatic escapes from the local asylum and is known to be a killer. This throws three more heirs into a panic. They are, Susan Silsby (Lady Carver), Cicely Young (June Lozano), and Paul Jones (Rusty Blackwell).

Others in the cast include Randolph Bourgeois, Dan Griffin and a mystery cameo appearance.

Who will get the West fortune, and what of the disappearance of Mr. Crosby?

The traffic in spices goes back to the days before recorded history. The earliest written records show the important part spices played in the lives of the ancients—and the Bible is full of references, including of course, the famous gifts of rare spices brought by the Wise Men to the Christ Child.

For thousands of years, spices were brought from mysterious sources in the Orient by long, winding camel caravans, and by frail ships that plowed their way through pirate-infested waters. For centuries, since 960 B.C. or earlier, the Arabs were the masters of this dangerous but rich spice trade. Then the demand for spices spread like a wave over Europe, as even the barbarians of the North learned of their preservative qualities.

As the demand grew, so did the prices—until the value of spices was truly fantastic. All spices, whether traveling by land or sea, had to be brought by way of Cairo and from there to Alexandria, where they were bought and shipped by the Venetians and the Genoese. The merchants of Venice grew fabulously wealthy, and it was this great wealth that sparked the Renaissance in Italy!

In 1271, a young Venetian named Marco Polo set out on a long journey of discovery. And, when he returned, he brought with him the secret of the lands where the spices grew. The mystery of their origin was gone and the race was as European merchants realized that these faraway places could be reached by their own ships.

First Portugal, then Spain and England, then Holland, and finally the United States entered one of history's most exciting contests. For nearly four hundred years these powers raced each other to the Orient, and fought for control of the spice-producing lands. In these years the face of the known world changed; as new lands and continents were discovered, wars were fought and nations waxed and waned as to whose powers. Always it remained true as it has throughout history, that the country controlling the spice trade was the richest and most powerful nation in the world.

Today, the United States is the prime figure in world spice buying and New York is its center.

Though wars, and threats of wars, still influence the spice market and the flow of spices from remote Eastern lands—buying spices and herbs is as simple as a trip to the nearest grocery store. There you see dozens of neatly packaged spices ready to turn their magic on food.

Once you transfer these neat little packages to your own kitchen there are a few simple things you should keep in mind. The flavor of spices and herbs depends on the volatile "essence" they contain. The best way to keep their flavor fresh and lasting is to keep your spice shelf away from heat, not over the stove, please! Protect your spices from strong light and moisture too, by carefully closing each package after you use it.

Spices will stay fresh in tightly sealed packages for several months, but they don't improve with long aging. It's a good idea to date each package when you buy it, and if you're not sure a spice is fresh, make this simple test: Rub a bit of spice or herb between your palms and breathe in the aroma. No aroma? Then it's time to replace your supply with a fresh, fragrant spice.

There's hardly a food you've tasted that can't be made better by a dash of spice or herb. So don't be a sissy—season! Just remember the key word is "dash," not "disguise." Use spices in small quantities at first, until you get to know their flavors. Start by following standard recipes, or use 1/4 teaspoon for each 4 servings. The only limit on the amount of spice you use is how well you like it—but remember, you can always add more later.

Dried herbs are stronger and more aromatic than fresh, so substitute 1/4 teaspoon of dried leaf herbs for 2 teaspoons of a minced fresh herb. Dried herbs or spices in whole or crushed form need moisture to unlock their true flavor—so add them to the liquid in your recipe.

N.O. Museum showing transcendent photos

In the summer of 1941, the great American photographer Edward Weston and his wife, Charis Wilson, were in Louisiana for nearly three weeks as part of a cross country trip to make photographs for a new edition of Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass.

Weston found the plantations and cemeteries of Louisiana exciting subjects for his camera and did many photographs during his brief stay.

Recently the New Orleans Museum of Art acquired, through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Q. Davis and Mrs. P. Roussel Norman, 20 of Weston's photographs of Louisiana subjects printed by the photographer's son, Cole Weston, from the original negatives.

This acquisition prompted the Museum to propose to Clarence John Laughlin, New Orleans' preeminent photographer who met and worked with Weston in 1941, the idea of organizing an exhibition of photographs by Weston and Laughlin of Louisiana subjects.

The resulting exhibition, "Weston and Laughlin in Louisiana: An Introduction to the Third World of Photography," will be on view at the New Orleans Museum of Art through May 16.

Subsequently, it will travel to other museums in Louisiana and throughout the country. The exhibition and catalog were made possible by grants from the Louisiana State Arts Council through the Division of the Arts, Office of Program Development, Department of Culture, Recreation, and Tourism and the Southern Arts Federation.

The exhibition, which features 130 photographs by Weston and Laughlin, is intended to illustrate Laughlin's thesis that the camera is not merely a machine, but can be sensitive to the individual imagination. Laughlin believes that, beyond documentation and "purism," there is a third way of using the camera which he calls "the transcendence of the object."

This will be the first exhibition to attempt to explicate this third use of photography.

Laughlin, who guest curated the exhibition, contrasts his discoveries of the intuitive and subconscious mind to the rational "purism" of Weston.

Most of Weston's photographs of Louisiana, and many of Laughlin's in the exhibition, have never been exhibited before.

You're being ripped off for more than $20 each year.

By shoplifters.

Last year shoplifters stole between $4 and $5 billion worth of merchandise. That's like stealing over $20 from each American. Shoplifting costs stores - and you - more than merchandise. Prices go up to cover the losses incurred by shoplifting. Dollars spent for special security devices, extra guards, insurance, alarm systems and legal counsel are eventually absorbed by you, the consumer. Stores that do stop thieves do it with the help of law officers who lose countless manhours handling shoplifters. And you, the taxpayer, must foot the bill for prosecuting shoplifters through an already overcrowded court system. How can you help stop this rip off? By being concerned. And informed. By urging your local authorities to crack down on shoplifters. And by reporting any shoplifting activity when you see it.

Everyone pays for shoplifting.
